

Grand Opening Poster

Name: _____ Hour: _____

A week has gone by since you turned in your “Weekly Specials” poster to your teacher. When you arrive at class your teacher is standing at the door and saying hello to everyone as they come in. Upon entering the classroom, you notice that someone dressed in a suit is standing in the front corner. After the bell rings, your teacher says, “Hi class, as you probably noticed, we have a guest. I’d like to turn the time over to him for a minute.”

The person in the suit walks to the front of the class and introduces himself “Hi, I’m Harry Schuldt, the manager of the Happy Hamburger Hut. I am here to thank everyone for entering our contest. As thanks, everyone that turned in a poster will get a coupon for an item of your choice from the restaurant. I’d also like to announce that <insert your name here> is the winner of the contest!”

You come up to the front of the room and he gives you a brand new $100 bill, and four coupons for whatever combo meals you want.

The class breaks out in applause and your teacher takes your picture for the newspaper. Mr. Schuldt continues, “Earlier in the year we announced that we were going to build a new restaurant in Boise. We would like to create a flyer that will announce the opening date and some information about our restaurant. We have the information we would like included, but we want you to make it look nice using whatever skills your teacher has taught you. If possible, we would like this done by next week. The winner will get $100 and we will bring you and your family to Boise for the grand opening.”

After the manager leaves, your teacher teaches you about the following things:

- Centering a project vertically on a piece of paper
- Text Effects and Typography
- Justifying paragraphs
- How to type hyperlinks and remove the hyperlink (links to websites)

After the lesson, the teacher passes out a paper that contains all the information that the manager wanted to have on the flyer. After looking at the information, you create the following flyer.
